

Leonardo Da Vinci

Leonardo di ser Piero da Vinci was born 15 April 1452 in Vinci, close to Florence, Italy. His most famous work includes his numerous inventions and his paintings like the Mona Lisa or the Last Supper.

His interests included sculpture, architecture, science, engineering, anatomy, astronomy, geology, botany, literature & philosophy...

He moved to France in 1516 and lived at the Clos Lucé, the residence given to him by François Ier.

Leonardo died there on 2 May 1519.

Leonardo was left handed and a vegetarian.
Leonardo was also a mirror writer:

Leonardo wrote from right to left.

He is still today considered as one of the most diversely talented individuals ever to have lived.

1- Le Clos Lucé

Leonardo Da Vinci was invited to stay in the Clos Lucé by François 1er, King of France. He lived there from 1516 to 1519.

The park displays models of the various machines designed by Leonardo. The museum also includes a copy of the Mona Lisa, painted by himself.

2 - Romerantin

François 1er wanted to transform Romorantin into the Capital of France and charged Leonardo Da Vinci of this titanesque project. This little town was going to become an ideal city, with a Royal Palace and canals like Venice.

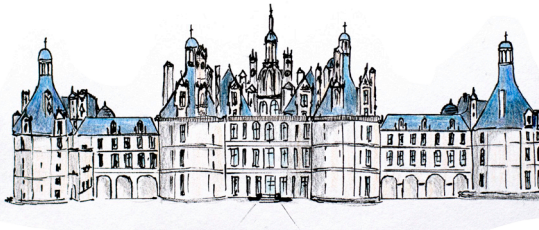

It is today referred to as the forgotten project as no one really knows why it was abandoned.

3 - The Royal Chateau of Chambord

Chambord was built after Leonardo's death but his work most likely inspired many of the castle architecture specificities including the double helix central staircase, the square shape floorplan, its overall design including the roofs' turrets and spires and even the Royal toilets system.

The Chateau of Chambord is the largest castle of the Loire Valley and a French Renaissance masterpiece.

4 - The Royal Chateau of Amboise

The Amboise Castle was François 1er residence. It is located 400m from the Clos Lucé and it is said that François 1er visited Leonardo daily, maybe even using a secret passageway, which is still to be discovered!

Leonardo's tomb can be found in the Chapel although this is not the original place where he was buried.
